First Aid trainer – any suggestions?

We have organised many First Aid courses over the years, but could do with a new trainer. We are prepared to pay up to £400 for the day and need certificates for the participants. Discussion of accidents at camps and hikes need to be part of the day.

London Woodcraft on Social Media

As well as our existing Facebook group, we have new public-facing Instagram and Twitter accounts representing London region Woodcraft Folk. If you'd like us to share posts about your district, tag us and we can share it along - we're @londonwoodcraftfolk on Instagram and @LondonWoodcraft on Twitter.

Bringing Groups back from the Brink

Becky, our Development officer is happy to help new groups, but we are also aware that existing groups often struggle to keep going. A couple of group leaders on the London Committee are in the process of writing up their experience of how to rejuvenate a group. If interested to learn from their experience, please contact her on b.a.harris@hotmail.co.uk. If money is an issue and you have exhausted other avenues she might also be able to help.

Quiz Night – a good Evening

About 25 leaders and DFs from 7 districts spent an enjoyable evening at London's first ever quiz. But it wasn't your usual pub quiz, although there was drink and food. Most of the questions had been written by Woodcraft Folk children which provided an added challenge to some of the older members. We managed to make a small surplus, but more importantly, tried a new format for socialising and had fun!
